AFTERCARE

Caring for Your Large Tattoo

Big, color-packed pieces ask more of your body. Expect more swelling and a longer heal, and let each session heal before the next.

YOUR LOGO

WHEN	WHAT'S NORMAL	DO	AVOID
First day wrap on	Big areas swell, ooze and feel sore like a sunburn. You may feel tired.	Wrap off at [2–5] hours. Wash with fragrance-free soap, pat dry. Rest, drink water.	Alcohol, hard workouts, long drives. Sleeping on it.
Days 2–4 peak swelling	Swelling, warmth and stiffness peak, mostly on legs and arms.	Raise a swollen limb. Very thin ointment for [3–4] days.	Tight sleeves, waistbands or straps. Thick product that traps heat.
Days 5–21 peeling	Peeling and itching over a big area. Color looks milky.	Thin fragrance-free lotion. Loose, soft clothing. Warm showers.	Scratching or picking. Pools, baths, hot tubs, the sea, sun.
Weeks 3–6 settling	Surface heals but stays shiny longer. Color settles in.	SPF 30+ once healed; color fades fast in UV. Confirm your next session.	Working over unhealed skin. Sunburn before a session.

Next session

Heal fully before your next session, usually [3–4] weeks. Moisturize, stay out of the sun, and arrive rested, fed and hydrated. Tell me about new medications, illness or sunburn first.

GOOD TO KNOW

- Big pieces can take [4–6] weeks or more to heal
- Red and bright inks can react later; tell me
- Fragrance-free products only; no antibiotic creams
- Change your sheets tonight and every few days
- Eat a full meal and bring snacks to long sessions
- Wash your hands every time before you touch it

Rest up
Sleep, food and water.

Thin layers
A little goes a long way.

Hands off
Let flakes fall off.

Wait [3–4] weeks
Heal between sessions.

CALL ME AND SEE A DOCTOR IF YOU NOTICE

- Redness or swelling spreading after day 3
- Yellow or green pus, or a bad smell
- Red streaks, heat or severe throbbing pain
- Fever, chills, a rash, hives or lasting bumps

Any of these: see your doctor, then text me so I can log the ink batch.

Swelling of the face or throat, or trouble breathing: call 911.
