AFTERCARE

After Your Head Spa Ritual

Your scalp is cleansed, rinsed and calm. A few easy habits keep it feeling fresh, light and balanced until your next visit.

WHEN	WHAT'S NORMAL	DO	AVOID
Today fresh and light	Scalp feels light and clean. Slight pinkness or tingling for a few hours.	Rest and sip water if you like. Sit or stand up slowly if you feel lightheaded.	Heavy styling products, tight hairstyles and hot tools close to the scalp.
Days 1–2 settling in	A few extra hairs at your next wash. They were already loose and ready to shed.	Gentle shampoo and lukewarm water. Brush gently, working up from the ends.	Color or chemical services, very hot showers, saunas and scratching.
Weeks 1–2 enjoy it	Less buildup and a scalp that feels balanced between washes.	Wear a hat or scalp sunscreen outdoors. Keep up your home routine.	Harsh scrubs, piled-on dry shampoo and leaving sweat in after workouts.
Next visit in [2–4] weeks	Oil and buildup return gradually. That's your scalp's natural rhythm.	Book your next ritual. Tell me about new medications, allergies or hair services.	Waiting until itching or flaking builds up before your next cleanse.

GOOD TO KNOW

- Head spa is relaxing care, not a medical treatment
- Massage can leave your neck a little tender for a day
- Use fingertips, not nails, when you shampoo
- Scalp care works best as a regular routine
- Your part and crown burn easily; cover them in the sun
- Wait [48] h before color to keep your scalp calm
- Blot with a soft towel instead of rubbing
- Persistent itch, flakes or hair loss: see a dermatologist

Go gentle
Lukewarm water and a mild shampoo.

Fingertips only
Massage, don't scratch.

Cover up
Hat or scalp SPF outdoors.
