AFTERCARE

Caring for Your Hydrated Scalp

Warm steam and a hydrating mask leave your scalp softer and your hair more conditioned. A few gentle habits over the next few days help that fresh, balanced feeling last.

YOUR LOGO

WHEN	WHAT'S NORMAL	DO	AVOID
Today rest of the day	Your scalp feels soft and a little warm. Light pinkness fades within a few hours.	Air-dry or use a cool setting. Relax, and sip water if you like.	Hot tools, saunas, steam rooms, hot tubs and hard workouts.
Days 1–2 settling	Hair feels softer. A few already-loose hairs shed at your next wash.	Gentle shampoo and lukewarm water. Brush slowly with a soft brush.	Heavy styling products. Color or chemical services for [48] hours.
Days 3–7 everyday care	Your scalp settles back into its usual oil balance.	Wear a hat or scalp sunscreen in strong sun. Keep washes gentle.	Very hot showers on your scalp. Scratching with your nails.
Next visit every [4] weeks	Buildup and dryness slowly return between visits.	Book your next steam facial and tell me about any changes.	Waiting too long if your scalp feels tight or itchy.

GOOD TO KNOW

- Steam softens buildup; it isn't a detox
- Lukewarm water is kindest to your scalp
- Light-headed? Sit down and sip some water
- Heat can fade fresh color a little
- Some shedding at your next wash is normal
- I'll refer you to a dermatologist if needed

Keep it cool
Air-dry or a cool setting today. No hot tools.

Go gentle
Soft brush, mild shampoo, lukewarm water.

Cover up
A hat or scalp sunscreen in strong sun.

Stay on track
Visits every [4] weeks keep it balanced.

CALL ME RIGHT AWAY IF YOU NOTICE

- Burning, blistering or a sore spot on your scalp
- Redness, itching or a rash that spreads
- Hives or swelling at your hairline or face
- Dizziness or a new headache that doesn't settle

For a burn, run cool water over it for 20 minutes, then call me. Severe headache, facial droop, slurred speech or trouble breathing: call 911.
